Grade 8 · English — Listening Between the Lines

Focus: Answer Key

Answer: 1. The passage is mainly about Maya realizing that the morning announcements are not neutral and may be used to subtly influence what students pay attention to at school.

Answer: 2. By the end of the passage, Maya feels suspicious and uneasy about the announcements, because she notices patterns in what gets praised or ignored and even feels a twist in her stomach.

Answer: 3. The phrase 'guide what students cared about' suggests that the announcements are not just sharing news but trying to push students to care more about certain activities and issues than others.

Answer: 4. The writer includes details about which clubs get longer or shorter shout-outs to show that some voices at the school are given more attention, which hints that the announcements may be biased.

Answer: 5. Maya is asking an important question because she is thinking critically about who controls information at her school and how that might affect students, instead of accepting everything without thinking.
